ULSTER'S AGONY

"When grief comes to your door it hurts - my God it hurts badly"

David Seawright, brother of the murdered Ulster politician George Seawright.

ON SATURDAY JUNE 18th 1988, two hundred National Front members marched from Speakers' Corner, Hyde Park, to Westminster, in a protest against the Government's pathetic attempts to deal with terrorism.

Among the marchers was David Seawright, brother of George Seawright, the Ulster politician brutally murdered by the IRA last year.

The placards carried by the marchers made it very clear that Libya's Colonel Gaddafi and Iran's Khomeini were, in the mind's of the National Front, the 'Godfathers of Terrorism'.

As the marchers passed the Houses of Parliament and Downing Street,NF National Activities Organiser, Ian Anderson, told the crowds, through a loudhailer, the reason why the National Front was marching, and drew attention to the Iron Lady's feeble attempts to defeat terrorism.

At the rally by the River Thames, National Front Chairman, Martin Wingfield, again attacked past and present British Governments; "Terrorism thrives in Europe because the terrorists know that no Government has the courage to stand up to them. Terrorists know they can cause pain suffering and grief and get away with it".

● Getting the message over to the people of London.

"Make no mistake, the bullets going into the backs of soldiers and civilians in Ulster come from Gaddafi"

He warned of the rise in a new sort of terrorism in Britain's inner cities; "A terrorism that sees burning, looting, mugging and rape. It's the sort of terrorism that saw PC Keith Blakelock hacked to death"

Martin Wingfield also outlined how the NF would deal with the IRA;

- "A National Front Government would issue a formal declaration of war on the IRA.
- We would instruct the police to investigate fund-raising for the IRA including pub-collections in places like Birmingham, north London and areas of Northern Ireland, and people engaged in fund-raising would be jailed.
- We would seal the border between Ulster and Southern Ireland to prevent IRA terrorists entering our country.
- Support for the IRA would be made a criminal offence, and this law would be applied to newspapers, television and organisations such as the Troops Out Movement who hold pro-IRA marches and meetings.

David Seawright didn't mince words when blaming Col. Gaddafi for supplying arms to the IRA. "Make no mistake", he told the rally, "The bullets going into the backs of soldiers and civilians in Ulster come from Gaddafi". He also spoke of how he understood first hand the grief that so many families in Ulster have been subjected to.

A bugler played the Last Post to signal a minute's silence for all victims of terrorism and the meeting was completed with rousing speeches from Paul Nash, Ian Anderson and Steve Brady.

BRITISH MONEY FOR PAKISTANI HOSPITAL

BRITAIN IS to give more than £500,000 a year to a nurses' training programme at the Aga Khan University Hospital in Karachi.

The aid for Pakistan was announced at the end of May by Overseas Development Minister Christopher Patten.

With Britain's hospitals facing ward closures, bed shortages and the loss of our best doctors and nurses to America in search of better wages, it is beyond comprehension that the Government can squander half a million pounds each year of British taxpayers money, so desperately needed by the NHS, in overseas aid.

TORY HYPOCRISY REACHES NEW LOW

TO THE white voters of Toller Ward in Bradford this creep is Edward George Skinner the Conservative candidate. It says so in English on one side of his election address.

To the Asian voters of Toller Ward the same creep is Haji Abdul Rashid Skinner the Conservative candidate. It says so in Urdu on the other side of his election address.

Isn't this typical of the new wave of Tories who will grovel to the lowest levels to gain the immigrant vote. Just think he's a member of the party whose leader said in 1979, "I can understand the British people's fears about being swamped".

What a joke! More than a million coloured immigrants have settled here since then and more than two million have been born to families already here

Well Haji Abdul Rashid Skinner, the National Front has a promise for you. If you want play at being a Pakistani that's all right with us. You'll be repatriated with the rest of them when there's a National Front majority at Westminster.

WELSH SCHOOLCHILDREN could soon be learning Japanese in class to help them keep pace with Japanese industry in the valleys.

The Government has ordered a study to assess how many teachers may be needed to introduce Japanese alongside English and Welsh on the curriculum.

Welsh Secretary Peter Walker says it would be advantageous since Wales is now the biggest centre for Japanese investment in Europe.

BRITISH KIDS BOYCOTT ASIAN FESTIVAL

● Lessons Cancelled: British pupils waiting for the end of 'Eid'.

FIGHTING FOR A BRITISH EDUCATION

BRITISH PARENTS withdrew their children from a school in protest at the enforced celebration of an Asian festival.

Parents collected their children from Sandal Magna First School in Belle Vue, Wakefield, last month because it celebrated Eid - the Moslem equivalent of Christmas, with cards, food and class parties.

The parents were angry that they were not consulted over the Asian festival organised for the benefit of the 110 Asian pupils at the school.

What the parents say:

"I feel we are becoming second class citizens in our own country. My six year-old daughter learned more at nursery school than she has here. I want her to have a Christian upbringing but I feel they are concentrating too much on Asian activities at the school. Will they start fasting for Ramadan next?"

Keith Jackson

"The children have been bringing home Asian books, learning to write their names in Asian languages and even speaking their names and greeting each other in Punjabi. The school should concentrate on basic skills, like reading and writing - in English"

Another Worried Parent

"They are bringing our children into the Asian religion. It's an English school in England and I feel the Asians should be English here and keep their culture at home".

Susan Derrick

"The parents feel that our children's English upbringing is being pushed out by Asian culture. When is it going to stop?

"The Asians should abide by our culture in our schools. The children are learning to say 'Good Morning' in Punjabi, bring home Asian langauge books and spell their names in Urdu".

Mother with three children at the school.

"The children are suffering educationally and the time spent on Asian culture could be better employed on basic learning. To add insult to injury our children are forced to eat Halal food for lunch!"

Another Worried Mother

"The children are being held back educationally and it seems that there is no respect for British culture any more".

Eric Haley, Spokesman for the Dewsbury Parents.

What the Authorities say:

"I am proud of Wakefield's excellent race relations record and the role played by the Asian community in the city. Multi-cultural education has my full support. I have every confidence in the school"

David Hinchcliffe, MP for Wakefield

"I am proud that the children benefit from learning about different cultures. We did not consult the parents over Eid, why should we, we don't consult them over Christmas".

Mrs Celia Tibble, School Governor, Sandal Magna First School

"It is the acknowleged aim of schools in Wakefield to be more responsive to the needs of a multi-ethnic society"

Coun. Phil Dobson, Chairman Wakefield Education Committee

"I reject the view that religious education or collective worship must be Christian. I also reject that multi-cultural education is biased against the English language, the English way of life and European culture.

I consider that what is taught in schools needs to take account of Britain's growing ethnic minorities and racial harmony".

Kenneth Baker, Education Secretary.

STATEMENT OF POLICY

Parents should have the right to choose

National Front on Education

★ We believe in the equality of opportunity in education as being of fundamental importance. However, we also believe that once children with special needs and special abilities have been identified then those children should be given specialist attention. We do not believe this to be in conflict with the ideal that parents should have the right to choose which sort of education to give their children.

★ We believe that a system of state schools is essential, but we also believe in the right of non-state schools to exist but we would change their financial administration so that they were financed by direct grant from the government and therefore would be open to all suitable children on the basis of merit and without fees. These schools would handle children with special needs, abilities or religious affiliations. We believe that all schools should be subject to suitable streaming, and the maximum size of schools should be no more than 800 pupils, with classes of no more than thirty.

" . . . a stronger emphasis on technological subjects"

★ Education must be tailored to the economic and cultural needs of the nation and for this reason we favour a stronger emphasis on technological subjects and those art subjects that foster national culture that will assist the re-birth of Britain.

★ We believe that in many schools discipline is lax, and we believe that this is deliberately encouraged by left-wing teachers, ably abetted by large numbers of Black schoolchildren who have neither the ability nor the desire to learn.

● Cultural Suicide: Bemused British children dress up as Asians.

★ We are opposed to the politicisation of children in school, but we favour the inculcation of patriotism and a knowledge of our history and culture as being the birthright of every British child.

★ Trendy subjects such as 'Peace Studies' will be discontinued. We regard the role of our universities as being of such fundamental importance to the future of our country that we shall give such institutions a high priority in the distribution of Government financial aid.

"Greater emphasis on kindergarten and junior school education"

★ However, we do not believe that centres of higher education should take all the cream of resources spent on education. We believe that the cost effectiveness of educational expenditure could be greatly enhanced by emphasis on kindergarten and junior school education. We would strive to enable children to start their schooling at least a year earlier than they presently do, as very young minds have a tremendous capacity to acquire easily numeracy, literacy and other skills which children at a later age often find difficult. We believe that it is the prime purpose of pre-secondary education to ensure that children are literate and numerate.

THEY SEEK it here, they seek it there, those Government inspectors seek Radio Enoch everywhere.

Government inspectors are trying to track down Radio Enoch after it broadcast on four VHF frequencies on Sunday 22nd May between 10.00am and 12.15am.

Its programme was started with rousing marching music and finished with The Last Post and an orchestral version of Auld Lang Syne. It included a discussion on the anti-Nationalist nature of the media.

A spokeswoman for the Department of Trade and Industry said they were investigating the broadcasts which 'sounded a sophisticated venture'. She said "It's very difficult to say over what area the broadcasts could be heard - it all depends on the power of their equipment".

AUGUST LEAFLET CAMPAIGN BY LEICESTER NF.

A LEAFLET campaign during August to boost membership is the target of the newly-formed Leicester Branch of the National Front.

Organiser, Dean O'Brien, a FLAG photographer and formerly a leading member of Coventry National Front, says the theme of the campaign will be ' Britain for the British'.

He told The FLAG, "Our secretary, Hayley Peet, has applied for a P.O.Box and is organising headed notepaper and literature supplies. We hope that getting the NF in Leicester back on its feet will signal a general revival of the NF in the East Midlands."

PACKED GLASGOW MEETING

A PACKED meeting and enthusiastic audience got Glasgow, the NF's newest branch, off to a flying start on Saturday 25th June.

Local patriots assembled under the chairmanship of respected local Nationalist Gus Mcleod to hear NF National Directorate member, Steve Brady, launch the NF's return to Scotland.

Copies of The FLAG and Vanguard sold out during the meeting.

Steve Brady, spent the morning prior to the meeting in the offices of The Sunday Post Scotland's largest circulation Sunday paper being interviewed about the NF's plans north of the border.

The Sunday after the meeting he held talks with Glasgow NF organiser, David Seawright, and key activists planning the NF's campaign.

Through the pages of The FLAG, Steve would like to thank all those who made his brief visit to Glasgow so enjoyable.

ROCHDALE NF LEAD THE WAY IN THE NORTH-WEST

THE GROWTH of the National Front in the North-West has been one of the most encouraging aspects of 1988.

Rochdale National Front have led the way with paper sales every Saturday in their town centre and their monthly meetings attracting attendances of 30 plus. Their hard-working committee Jon Hickson (Chairman), Steve Smith (Organiser), Ray Marsh (Treasurer) and David Taylor (Secretary) combines youthful enthusiasm with experience, the ideal blend for a growing branch.

Organiser Steve Smith, has also been the driving force for getting Manchester National Front back in action. At their first meeting for two years on Sunday 19th June a new committee was elected comprising of David Tickle (Organiser), Michael Addie (Treasurer)and Brian Finlay (Secretary).

Picket Outside His Office

Paul Says Everything's Fine Despite . . .

THUGS AMBUSH NF CIVIL SERVANT

PAUL NASH, NF Directorate and Executive Council members was attacked by Labour Party thugs when he left work on Friday 17th June.

He was knocked to the ground and kicked about the head and face.

Paul Nash is a Civil Servant working for the DHSS at a North London office. He has worked for the Civil Service for 10 years. Over the last few months a campaign, whipped up by London magazines City Limits and Time Out together with West Indian newspapers Caribbean Times and West Indian World, has been going to jepodise Paul's position.

Labour Party thugs picket Paul's office every Monday from 8.30-10.30am to try to intimidate Paul and his workmates but the campaign has backfired.

Paul told The FLAG, 'Everything is fine, it's just business as usual. Witnesses who saw the attack on me have come forward and the Police have the descriptions and names of my attackers. I have had numerous offers of help from NF members and supporters all over North London but they're just not needed. I enjoy my work, I have been a loyal employee for ten years and my employers are more than satisfied with my record. The Labour Party thugs can holler as much as they like, they are just creating a lot of interest within the Civil Service in the National Front and its policies.

The FLAG acknowledges the courage and commitment of Paul Nash. If you would like to drop Paul a letter of support please write to P.O.Box 760, London N17 6SB.

BLIND PREJUDICE FROM YARMOUTH SCHOOLS

YARMOUTH NATIONAL Front organiser, Tom Holmes, has criticised headmasters of schools in Yarmouth for 'blind prejudice' after they had refused to invite NF speakers to their schools.

Head teachers of Acle High School, Caister High School, Flegg High School and St Edmunds High School were all sent the National Front's School's Information Pack' by Yarmouth NF. A covering letter with the pack asks head teachers for the opportunity for a National Front speaker to come to the school to explain the party's policies.

County Council Press Officer, Bernard Farrant, had said that it was up to individual teachers as to whether they invited the National Front, but the four head masters declined to issue invitations.

Mr Richard Fuller, headmaster at Flegg High said he did not object to the National Front sending literature and he thought the direct approach by a political party was better than leafletting at school gates.

Tom Holmes told the Eastern Daily Press, "We are accused of being prejudiced but this is just blind prejudice. We are trying to let people make up their own minds."

ULSTER & THE NATIONAL FRONT

Steve Brady examines the National Front's Ulster policy to see what the NF has to offer the Province.

● Standing by Ulster: The National Front demonstrates against an IRA march through London.

Where does the National Front stand on Ulster?

100% behind the loyal British people of the Province. Ever since our Party was founded over twenty-one years ago we have totally supported the Ulster Loyalists and uncompromisingly opposed the IRA. No other nationwide party can claim such a steadfast record of backing Ulster.

What does the National Front do to support Ulster?

Mostly, we put across to the rest of the British people the message that their fellow-citizens in Ulster are as British as they are. That Ulster deserves the same degree of support in her present hour of need from the rest of the UK as she has always given to the rest of the UK, from long before the Somme to after the Falklands. And that the murdering scum of the IRA are as much the enemies of the folk of Birmingham and Brighton as they are of the natives of Belfast and Ballymena.

Over the past 20 years, millions of Britons all over our country have read NF literature putting Ulster's case. Throughout most of mainland Britain, outside the Orange enclaves of Merseyside and Central Scotland, we have been the only friends Ulster has got, the only ones fighting in Ulster's Cause.

What does the NF do to fight the IRA?

The NF is a fully democratic British party, supporting the right of free speech for our opponents as well as ourselves. But we do not extend this right to the IRA and their supporters. They are terrorists and criminals, not a legitimate political voice. So the NF has always had a policy of physically opposing the IRA wherever they have reared their heads on the mainland.

Year after year, IRA march after IRA march has been physically confronted by the NF, IRA meetings disrupted, prevented and closed down. This year alone, the NF has mobilised against the IRA's London "Bloody Sunday" march - the only group to do so - and given the IRA terrorists a bloody nose when they tried to swagger gloatingly past the scene of their horrific Birmingham pub bombings.

NF members have been arrested, fined and jailed for fighting the IRA, but nothing will stop us fighting for Ulster on the streets of mainland Britain, alongside any other Loyalists who will fight with us.

What is the NF policy on Ulster?

It is summed up in two slogans - "Smash the IRA!" "Ulster is British Forever!" The IRA must be smashed mercilessly, by the full weight of the security forces, including locally recruited, officered and controlled Ulster volunteers. All known IRA terrorists should be put behind bars, by internment if intimidation prevents a trial. IRA murderers and bombers should hang. Provisional Sinn Fein, and any other "political" manifestation of the IRA by another name, should be banned and its activists, from Gerry Adams down, put behind bars where they belong. As should British IRA fellow travellers like Ken Livingstone and the "Troops Out Movement".

The absurd "Anglo-Irish Agreement" should be scrapped, and Dublin told to keep its nose out of Britain's affairs.

Ulster must be kept British forever by the repatriation to the Irish Republic of the Republican community in Ulster from which, generation after generation, the IRA springs. Only that way can the threat to Ulster be ended for good. Otherwise the Republicans, with their higher birth rate, will outnumber the Britons of Ulster in the not-too-distant future.

● Standing by Ulster: The NF sells papers in support of Ulster.

What about independence for Ulster?

Ulster's steadfast loyalty has been so shamefully rewarded with betrayal from London that we can well understand some Loyalists bitterly asking whether Ulster should go it alone.

But we don't think Ulster's Britishness is best safeguarded by her ceasing to be British, a part of Britain. An Ulster on her own would be much weaker and more vulnerable to Republicanism than Ulster an integral part of a united Britain - with power within the UK devolved to whatever degree her people desire.

But of course events - such as a withdrawal by the Government in London of "its" troops from the Province - could force Ulster to stand alone for her very survival. If so, we would stand with her. A subsequent NF Government would not try to force such an independent Ulster back into the UK. Instead we would rebuild the bonds broken and the trust betrayed in the hope that Ulster would once more one day desire to rejoin the united Motherland.

● Standing by Ulster: The NF pickets pro-IRA meetings.

Does this mean the NF is opposed to Roman Catholics?

No. We are concerned with nationality, not religion. Anyone, whatever their religion, who is a loyal White Briton is British. Anyone, whatever their religion, who is not, or does not want to be, British is a foreigner and has no right to live on British soil.

Is the NF a Fascist or Nazi party?

No. We are a 100% British, democratic party. We don't want to set up a dictatorship, or ban trades unions and so on. We do want to uphold the British rights of civil and religious liberty won for us by William III, Prince of Orange, in the Glorious Revolution of which the Battle of the Boyne and the Siege of Londonderry were key parts.

We are a party rooted in the soil of Britain and the views of British people and we want no truck with failed foreign movements of the past. This "Nazi" smear is a long standing Communist/IRA lie about the NF, to support which they can only drag up quarter-century-old quotes from people none of whom have been in the NF for many years. Those few misguided Loyalists who sometimes echo the "Nazi NF" smear are doing the IRA's work for them, repeating their lies and dividing and weakening the Loyalist Cause we all uphold.

Finally, how does the NF see its role in Ulster?

As an ally, not a rival, of other Loyalist groups in the Province. Whilst we welcome members from the province - unlike the other mainland-based parties - and have Branches in Ulster - we encourage our recruits to support other Loyalist groups and not to leave any they are already in. We do not want to poach members from, or split the vote or support of, other groups. We do not want to muscle in as self-proclaimed "leaders", arrogantly criticising other Loyalists in the thick of the struggle from the relative safety of a mainland base.

We are here to help, not to snipe. To serve, not to use, the Loyalist cause. To listen, as well as to talk.

To our members and prospective members in Ulster we do not provide a chance to get in on some rival Loyalist faction. Instead, we offer them a chance to serve the Loyalist Cause as a whole by discovering, and propagating via our literature throughout the Loyalist movement, a wider and deeper base of economic, social and ideological thought. And a chance to take part in a Movement whose struggle extends beyond the boundaries of the province to encompass the entire British Nation and the White World.

For Ulster's struggle is but part of a worldwide struggle to defend the White Race and European Civilisation against Communism and chaos. The enemies of that Race and Civilisation, Gerry Adams and Colonel Gaddafi and Nelson Mandela and Ken Livingstone, the IRA and the African National Congress and the Communists and the Libyans, already know this, and work together. The NF offers Ulster a chance to begin uniting in return with those around the World, from London to Pretoria to Washington D.C., fighting for our Common Cause.

Within the U.K., we firmly believe that Ulster cannot stand and fight alone forever. Only a nationwide political movement, fighting throughout the UK for national power, can finally win Ulster's war. Just as Ulster's fight is Britain's fight, so Britain's fight - the NF's fight on the mainland - is Ulster's fight. We call on Ulster Loyalists, as individuals and organisations, under our banner and as allies alongside it under their own, to join us in waging Britain's fight, for the reconquest of Britain by the British people. Then, and only then, will the scourge of IRA terror be lifted from Ulster for good, and her people dwell secure in the knowledge that ULSTER IS BRITISH FOREVER!

BRITAIN: The World's Dustbin

BRITAIN is fast becoming the World's favourite dumping ground for poisonous waste. A report by the Government's Public Health Inspectors, published on June 22nd, revealed that more and more foreigners are sending their toxic and hazardous waste to Britain because our dumps are cheaper.

In 1985-86, foreigners dumped 25,000 tons of deadly waste on Britain. In 1987-88, they dumped twice as much, 50,000 tons, plus 130,000 tons of non-toxic rubbish. The upward trend in the importation of poisonous foreign filth is expected officially to continue.

The Government is proud of this new booming growth industry as they turn our country physically, as they have already turned it racially, into the dustbin of the World.

NO DEAL

● Burnt Iranian Embassy

THE British and Iranian Governments have come to an "arrangement" concerning damage done to each others' Embassies. The Iranian Embassy in London was damaged when the SAS rescued Iranian diplomats from terrorists holding them as hostages after one Iranian had already been murdered.

The British Embassy in Teheran was wrecked by an anti-British, pro-IRA mob egged on by the mad mullahs ruling the country. Afterwards the mullahs renamed the street on which it stands "Bobby Sands Boulevard" after the IRA's "Slimmer of the Year".

Nonetheless, British compensation to Iran for the rescue of Iranian diplomats is a million pounds more than Iranian compensation to Britain for inciting a mob to wreck our Embassy. This artfully designed handout of a million quid to the mullahs should, however be seen in the context of "delicate" negotiations being conducted by the Foreign Office to secure the release of British hostages - including Terry Waite - held by the mullahs' mates in Beirut. Meanwhile, the "Iron Lady" continues to boast that she would never pay money to secure the release of terrorist hostages.

Lesbians

EALING COUNCIL in West London has hired a £70 a day private researcher to find out whether Irish women living in Ealing form an 'oppressed minority'.

No Shirtlifters!

LAMBETH COUNCIL in South London has withdrawn a £50,000 a year grant to a Christian mission which provides essential help for families in need. The reason is because it refuses to employ practising gays and lesbians on its staff.

The Caine Family Centre run by the Reverend Duncan Whyte was given just two weeks notice of the withdrawl of its grant. He said;

"It is a traditional, Biblical Christian understanding that homosexuality is an immoral state of life that is not acceptable for us. We cannot practice it and be consistently Christian".

TORY LOONIES

MRS LYNDA Chalker, Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs said in the House of Commons on 8th June 1988 that she hoped the South African Government would consider releasing Nelson Mandela and that other political prisoners (sic) might also be considered for release.

Mr. Hugh Dykes, the Conservative M.P. for Harrow East called for greater publicity for the others incarcerated with Mr. Mandela.

Nelson Mandela was not imprisoned for his political beliefs but as Commander-in-Chief of the ANC's military wing and for planning large scale terror attacks against civilian targets in the 1960s. In 1963 police found an ANC hideout near Johannesburg which contained 210,000 hand grenades, 48,000 land mines and 50 tons of explosives.

Protectionism Jibe from IMC

NF STILL SAYS: BRITISH JOBS FOR BRITISH WORKERS!

A PATHETIC attack on the National Front by the two leading Motorcycling Industry bodies have revealed their total lack of support for British workers in the industry.

Motor Cycle News on Wednesday June 22 carried stories reporting the attack on the NF from the BMF and the IMC over the Front's policy that 'All motor cycles bought in Britain would be made in Britain, in British factories by British workers'

Criticism of the NF policy from these two august bodies was strident and totally lacking in substance.

The IMC said 'We don't welcome NF intrusion in the Motor Cycle Industry. They're just looking for something to leech on to. You've got to suspect the motives of anybody who starts banning foreign trade. That's the kind of talk we heard from Germany before the last war.'

While criticism from BMF chairman Jerry Matthews was even less constructive. "This kind of protectionism is 19th century economics - the NF are not living in the real world".

Unemployed workers within Britain's Motor Cycle industry know what the real world is. It's sitting at home doing nothing while Japanese workers are making bikes for British cyclists. The real world is also Triumph, Matchless and Norton struggling to establish a British Motor Cycle industry again. They deserve all the help they can get, help that would only come from a National Front Government.

Bosses slam NF 'leeches'

KEEP your hands off motor cycling!

That was the resounding message from industry chiefs this week after British bike manufacturers were given an unwelcome boost . . . . . FROM THE NATIONAL FRONT.

The ultra-extremist party have picked on motor cycling as the latest target for their own notorious brand of patriotism.

Their keep-biking Britain campaign consists of a call to ban all foreign imports — that's right, no Japanese, Italian or German machines — and a programme of heavy investment in the home industry.

They claim the fightback by UK companies over the past three years forced the Japanese big four into urgent talks with their British competitors — a reference to the world summit in London last February.

"It's a sign of how the decline in the industry has hurt Japanese companies," says the NF statement.

"The National Front believe we should give the Japs the cold shoulder. They didn't care when they destroyed the British motor cycle industry," it goes on.

Martin Wingfield, who describes himself as the chairman of the National Front, said an NF government would help the British revival by banning all imports.

Asked if he thought such a move would be welcomed by the hundreds of thousands of Japanese bike owners, he said: "We're a political party — we don't set out to be popular."

But their sudden interest in motor cycling has been slammed by the IMC, who dismiss their tirade as nonsense.

"Motor cycling has enough problems of its own without the National Front leeching on to it," said a spokesman.

"With their reputation, we don't want anything to do with them . . . their motives are very very suspect.

"If they want to be taken seriously, they have to relate to the real world. Anybody who advocates banning imports has got to look at the consequences when others retaliate."

Front Demands Factories Not Museums

TRANSPORT SECRETARY, Paul Channon, took a trip down memory lane when he opened some new displays at the National Motorcycle Museum last month.

● Living in the past: Transport Minister Channon.

More than 150 bikes went on public display for the first time, models ranging from a 1902 Humber to a 1984 Silk 600.

Maybe the visit will give Mr Channon the incentive to support the present day British motorcycle industry by investment and import controls. The museum says it is a step nearer its ultimate aim of presenting the complete story of our country's once great motorcycle industry.

The National Front says the British motorcycle industry should be great again.

BRITISH BRAINPOWER FRITTERED AWAY TO FOREIGNERS

ON JUNE 21st the Princess Royal was guest of honour as Manchester University celebrated the 40th anniversary of the first run of the World's first true electronic computer, the Manchester Mark I.

Present were Professors Tom Kilburn and Dai Edwards, inventors of the modern computer and both British.

In the early days of computing, it was Manchester University, in cooperation with local firm Ferranti, which led the world. After the Mark I came the Mark II computer in 1957, which was marketed by Ferranti at a quarter of the cost of its American rival the IBM 704. Then the British boffins developed the world's first transistorised computer, the Metropolitan Vickers 950. Followed by the MU-5 which became the ICL 2900 and later the ICL Series 29.

Today, Manchester still leads the world in computing innovations, as the home of Project Flagship, developing a new computer architecture for the 1990's.

Yet, although the computer is thus clearly a British invention, today over 60% of all computers worldwide are made by the American multinational IBM. Most of the other 40% come from the Unisys, Hewlett-Packard and DEC, all US-based, and Japanese giants like Fujitsu. The sole surviving British computer company, ICL, is small fry, as well as being closely tied to the US multinational ITT.

● 1948 British technicians working on the Manchester Mark 1

Yet again, as with jet planes, communications satellites and supersonic aircraft, the world-beating fruits of British brainpower have been frittered away to foreigners. The same thing is happening now to the British Aerospace/Rolls Royce HOTOl Space Shuttle, which the Government has refused to support.

Timidity, short-sightedness and petty meanness by successive Governments, Tory and Labour, have thrown away Britain's technological and engineering lead and reduced our nation, once the Workshop of the World and the greatest economic and military power on Earth, to a Japanese-colonised offshore province of Europe.

Only the National Front will put British brainpower to work to make our country great again.

An Inheritance of Brutality and Immorality

ANYONE READING THE national newspapers over the last month could not have failed to be chilled to the bone by their contents. The revelations are a testament to society's appalling record of negligence and outright cruelty in its treatment of its more defenceless elements, particularly its women and children.

Firstly there was the murder of a seven month pregnant mother while making a telephone call for assistance after her car broke down on the M50. Her body was eventually found on the verge of the motorway - she had been stabbed to death. Police reports indicate that the motive for the murder was probably rape.

Secondly were the reports of the death of a baby boy due to starvation. Tins of dog-food were found in the otherwise empty kitchen cupboards of the family home while traces of nappy were found in the desperately hungry child's stomach. The parents denied neglect! Social workers said they were aware of the case. Why was nothing done?

Then came the conclusion of two major investigations into the Cleveland Child Abuse cases. The two doctors involved were found guilty for failing to procure outside opinions to confirm their findings of the abuse. Notwithstanding the rights and wrongs of these cases, the instances of child abuse have risen rapidly in the last few years. Undoubtedly the work of both the medical and legal systems in their fight to reduce the number of children at risk will find this ruling putting back their work a number of years.

These instances, in isolation, may not merit the sentiment expressed in the opening paragraph of this editorial. But, how many times in recent months, have we read in our newspapers of similar instances.

A cancer of decadence and immorality has been spreading through the body of Britain over the last decade or so. A decade in which we have been governed by a Tory Party whose leader makes the laughable claim that she has 'taken the high moral ground' in Britain's political arena today. We have seen the promotion of the Tory philosophy of 'look after yourselves'. We have seen the promotion of homosexuality in our schools as well as everyday life. No wonder the spread of AIDS is rampant. We have seen the collapse of the Church as a figurehead of communities and we have seen the destruction of British Industry leading to the break up of many of those communities because the Government and the Common Market have insisted that profit, not quality of life, must dictate where men and women should work and live.

If this cancer is left to grow we will leave our children an inheritance of brutality and savagery - that is, of course, if they survive to claim it!

MASONIC CORRUPTION STRIKES AGAIN

AN OLD Bailey Court was told last month that a civil servant who had honourably worked his way up from office boy to district works officer over 42 years was drawn into a web of corruption when he joined the Freemasons.

Eric Wenborn, 58, was given holidays in Las Vegas, prostitutes were provided, he was also given £1,000 a month all bribes to ensure that builders who were fellow Masons got lucrative contracts.

One of the builders to whom he was introduced, Mr Maurice Hern, confessed that the only way for a builder to obtain contracts was "by bribing the civil servants and rigging the contracts". The whole corrupt web was blown wide open when a disgruntled employee of a building firm revealed the story.

So far six builders and a civil servant have been convicted on similar charges.

FORCES FALL OUT

THE STRENGTH of the armed forces fell by almost 3,000 last year according to Ministry of defence figures.

The Royal Navy was down by 1,000 and the Army by 1,600. The RAF had a small drop while the Royal Marines were almost unchanged.

Rape Cases

HOME OFFICE figures published in June showed the number of recorded rapes rose from 11,800 in 1986 to 13,300 last year, an increase of 8%.

The rise, however is down on last year when there was an increase of 20% in 1985 and 1986.

● British Electrical Workers: Their jobs would be safe under a National Front Government.

Dutch Firm Decides on British Workers' Future

BRITISH ELECTRICAL workers face the axe because a Dutch firm based in Britain is pulling out of the country.

Philips, which employs 20,000 in Britain at 20 sites including Croydon, Crawley, Redhill, Blackburn, Burnley and Washington, have been forced to re-organise their operations because "increased competition has put pressure on trading profit making cost cutting necessary".

A Philips spokesman said the company was starting a programme of 'radical restructuring' which would mean redundancies in Britain.

Under a National Front Government no Dutch firm would be able to put British workers on the dole, because there would be no Dutch firms operating in Britain. British electrical workers would work in British factories run as co-operatives where they would have a direct say in the running of the factory. Import controls would mean that all electrical goods bought in Britain would be made in Britain in British factories by British workers.

Triads Look To Britain

THE TRIADS, the Chinese organised crime syndicate has pinpointed Britain as a base for its operations when they are forced to move out of Hong Kong because of the Chinese takeover in 1997.

British police forces, including the Metropolitan Police, have agreed to hold annual meetings to discuss Triad growth and how it can be combatted.

BEWARE:

Hong Kong's Ethnic Chinese Look to Great Britain!

WE ARE still nine years away from the 1997 date when Hong Kong is to be handed over to China. Large numbers of Hong Kong Chinese are already leaving the country, a total of 30,000 are expected to leave this year, and it seems likely that this figure will increase each year.

It is not known how many of these 30,000 came to Britain but it is certain that an increasing proportion of those leaving will be looking towards Britain, especially as many of then hold British passports.

In a debate in the House of Lords on June 10th both Labour and SLD Peers, including Lord Bonham-Carter, expressed concern about the way in which Hong Kong will be governed after 1997. Not one of them directly voiced any concern about the now distinct possibility of tens of thousands of Chinese arriving on our shores.

At present China appears to have a relatively liberal form of Communist government, thousands, rather than millions of political prisioners are locked up, but what will happen if there is a change at the top and a new cultural revolution style purge?

Then the stream of emigrants from Hong Kong will turn into a flood

The British Government could avert this crisis by accelerating the hand-over to China and making sure that not one single ethnic Chinese of Hong Kong is granted the right to come to the United Kingdom.

Israeli Secret Agents on 'Active Service' in Britain

ISMAEL HASSAN Sowan was revealed as an Israeli Secret Service agent at an Old Bailey trial on 10th June.

He was being tried for supplying arms to the Palestine Liberation Organisation and was caught in possession of arms and explosives at a house in Hull.

In his own defence he admitted that he was actually working for the Israeli Mossad.

Now the British Government and the Israeli Government claim to be friends. Virtually all senior politicians of the main parties are also members of their respective 'Friends of Israel' societies. So what on earth are Israeli Secret Service agents doing operating in Britain?

What is clear is that they were operating without the knowledge of the British Security Services as Mr Sowan's story had to be checked with the Israeli Embassy.

Mossad has an appalling record of murder and kidnapping that spans across the world. The National Front believes that its agents should be excluded from Britain.

NOISE POLLUTION

VILLAGERS AT Steeple Aston in Oxfordshire are living in fear because American jets are flying over them.

The jets are terrifying children and animals, causing enormous stress to adults and shattering windows.

Villagers have been told that the reason for the sudden assault on their village is that the 72 F-111s based at nearby Upper Heyford are now too old and too heavy to make sharp turns needed to avoid the village.

STRAWS IN THE WIND

JUST A little while ago, the Confederation of British Industry was complaining that Britain's mild economic recovery was being hampered by a lack of skilled labour - this, mark you, from the very organisation that, during the lean years, decided that training apprentices was an unnecessary luxury. Now these same paragons of perception have made yet another discovery - namely that Britain's declining birthrate will, in the coming years, result in a labour shortage. Well, fancy that! Let it be noted that they did not forecast that the ever-increasing proportion of that miniscule birthrate that is of sooty hue would result in a severe quality shortage also.

Now isn't that strange that I could forecast years ago that the activities of rabid birth-controllers, pro-abortionists, advocates of quickie divorce, plus the crushing burden of debt imposed on young couples by the property speculators bonanza, would have that precise effect? But then, you see, I'm no expert.

Another straw in the wind is the decision of the European Court that the British will in future pay VAT on goods and services that our own Government assured us would never be taxed. Now our very own sovereign Government says that it is sorry but that it is helpless in the face of this supreme authority.

When asked, the other day, whether she would favour the establishment of a European Central Bank, Ia Thatcher replied that such a bank would only be possible in the context of a United States of Europe and that that was not going to happen.

Oh really?

Well, you surely must be aware of the great "1992" campaign with which the Government is urging British industry to prepare for the day when all European tariff barriers will be removed and there will be total freedom of trade within the EEC. What has been somewhat less well publicised is the fact that, at the same time, there will be no more control over the movement of labour within the community.

So with Britain now on offer to the world's industrialists as the back door into Europe; with an impending labour shortage, and with impending freedom of movement of labour; what do you suppose will be the result? With the EEC having acquired new members from the more impoverished parts of Europe and with Turkey seeking membership; from what source do you suppose the labour shortage will be met?

All straws in the wind that combine to break Britain's back. Whether there is to be a United States of Europe is unimportant, for when Britain is no longer British, what it is called is irrelevant.

Madam Thatcher has succeeded in conning the doltish British into believing that she is the iron-willed defender of British interests when, in fact, all she is doing is ensuring that those interests are sacrificed at a slow enough pace not to alarm the somnolent slobs who now inhabit our septic isle. But take heart, you hapless Brits! You may be sure that whatever happens, free-trading Thatcher's fat friends will prosper mightily.

Methinks that Madam Thatcher, Britain's bogus Boadicea, is no less a phoney than the odious Master Kinnock. She is, alas, infinitely more dangerous!

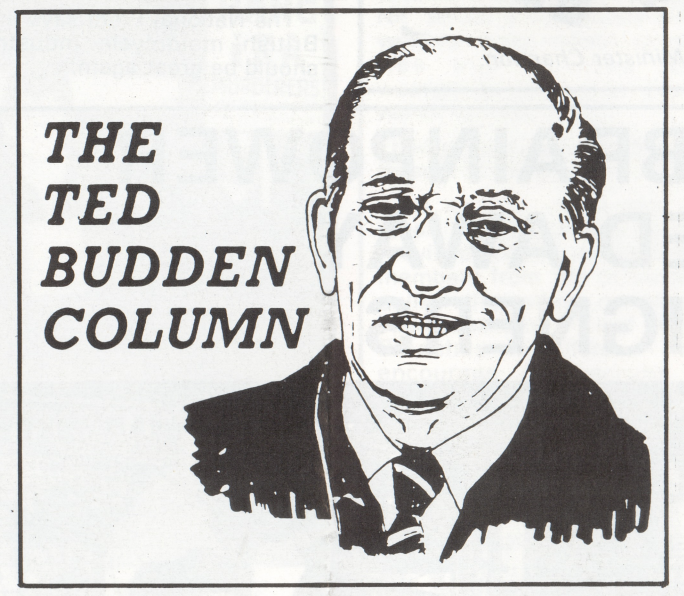
PEANUT BEWARE

THERE IS a story about a prospective Liberal Party candidate who was being interviewed by a Selection Committee. When asked to state his political position, he treated the Committee to a half-hour exposition on his unshakeable political principles and concluded by saying; "Those are my views, but I want you to know that if you don't like them, I'm prepared to change them."



Such a man is Neil Kinnock. Not a Liberal, of course. A socialist, allegedly. Leader of the Labour Party, allegedly. In reality, an unprincipled opportunist - a little pink pimple on the body politic who would sell what passes for his soul for the taste of political power that would massage his ridiculous ego.

In response to the market research carried out by his oily sidekick Brian Gould, he has somersaulted over just about evey policy he once so passionately espoused as the televisual leader of Labour's left. I have long held the opinion that he would even renege on his fervent commitment to unilateral nuclear disarmament if only his old red tomato Glenys would let him. A little while ago it seemed that she had actually given her permission, only for poor Neil to discover that his brand new nuclear posture had affronted the giant intellects of stone age union bosses like the great Ron Todd. So he somersaulted yet again, did the incredible elastic man.

As Labour's great White (or white trash) hope, he has achieved the impossible - he has actually succeeded in making Thatcher's horrid lot look good. His confrontations in Parliament with the ghastly Thatcher remind me of the long-running farce "Sailor Beware" in which the shy, bumbling sailor was continually crushed by the stentorian bombast of the strident old harridan of a prospective mother-in-law portrayed by Peggy Mount.

When Kinnock speechifies, he stumbles like an under-rehearsed and incompetent ham actor. When he tries to be clever, he is so inept that even his worst enemies are too embarrassed to laugh.

He is a croaking phoney. A political peanut. He is Leader of the Labour Party only because he is a peanut among birdseed.

No wonder Thatcher makes mincemeat of him.

But then, of course, one can't make mincemeat out of a peanut - just peanut butter.

YOBBOMANIA

HEAVEN FORBID that I might seem to be condoning yobbishness and loutish excesses committed in foreign parts by callow clods masquerading as "British football fans". I tend, these days, to agree with Oscar Wilde that youth is wasted on the young. It's all to do, I suppose, with hardening of the arteries and softening of the brain.

To make matters worse, we now have a Minister of Sport. I've always considered that we need a Minister of Sport like we need a hole in the head and that least of all do we need a hole in the head like the present dwarfish incumbent of that lofty post, the pestilential Colin Moynihan.

Now all poor Colin has is just the sports assignment; a very meagre one for a man who has a giant ambition to compensate for his lack of inches - in fact I suspect that he aims to become the shortest head of state since Napoleon.

So, to make the most of his tiny job, this relentless self-publicist has contrived to surround football with an aura of crisis. Since football is a mainly working class sport, and Madam Thatcher's detestation of the working class is notorious, Moynihan's regular reports to the great lady on the latest working class atrocity serve to stoke her prolephobia and put little Colin in her good books - in fact he reminds me of nothing so much as the little school sneak, snitching to the old dragon of a headmistress about the misdeeds of the big boys.

This atmosphere of crisis is, of course, compounded by the tabloid press, who have done much to promote such real violence as there is by making their reports of even the dullest football match read like a battle communique - this being particularly true of the effluent emanating from Rupert Murdoch's Wapping sewage treatment works.

So I suggest that, without wishing in any way to excuse British hooliganism, that the combination of little Colin's dire warnings to the Germans that they were about to suffer invasion by British barbarians, plus press speculation on the coming holocaust, plus the ever-present evil eye of the TV cameras, hovering to record the most trifling incident, made it certain that the Dutch and German hooligans, of whom there is a plentitude, would be eager to confront the fiendish British. So what were the British to do when confronted? Run away? The Sun would have had a field day with that.

So it was all, in the main, the Government's and the media's self-fulfilling prophecy, and, in any event, those disturbances that undoubtedly occurred were fairly minor despite the lurid reports reaching Britain.

In fact, the German police were astounded by the ludicrous exaggerations and were at pains to make plain that German cities had not been devastated by the barbarian horde. They even had the temerity to suggest that the British were the victims rather than the aggressors, which prompted our Government to make furious demands that the Brits be arrested and imprisoned without trial. No doubt the Germans thought it more than a little queer that the Government and the media were so insistent on heaping obloquy on their fellow citizens, as no doubt did Germany's Chancellor Kohl when Thatcher distanced herself from the detested proles by making a public apology to him. He probably smiled politely and wondered what the silly frau was going on about.

So, yes, I do think it shameful that the image of football should be disfigured by a small number of violent hooligans. I think it even more deplorable that the millions of decent people who watch football should be slandered by drivelling sensationalists like Moynihan and the pulp press who, in any event, merely feed the vanity of the genuine hooligans.

I believe it to be an even greater pity that, in Thatcher's new Britain, greed is the only spur and national greatness is a fast fading illusion.

What is needed is a real sense of national purpose and national identity to enthuse the nation's youth. Only the National Front can supply that. You can be sure that the Thatchers and Moynihans of this world will stop at nothing to prevent us ever getting the chance.

LEAVE THEM ALONE!

I WAS disappointed in the Editorial in June's issue of The FLAG.

The attack on the Royal Family was totally unneccessary. The British people are very proud of their heritage and part of that heritage is the Royal Family. Of course some of the statements they make are unacceptable to Nationalists, but the Royal Family are only echoing the sentiments of the time.

They are just as brainwashed as the average Briton with regard to the multi-racial society and you can bet your life that what they say in public is nothing like what they say in private and what they really feel.

The FLAG and the National Front should leave the Royal Family alone. When the day comes that the National Front has been elected to power by the British people you can rest assured that the Royal Family will be making statements in accordance with the views of the National Front and the British electorate.

WHAT A CONTRADICTION

What a contradiction in terms was the editorial in last month's The FLAG. One minute you're saying how National Front members swell with pride when singing 'God Save Our Queen' then you're saying that we should start interfering with the succession to the throne.

You sound like some left-wing rag griping on about how much the Royal Family costs. They are a great asset to the country and fulfilling their duties with such dignity they make Britain the envy of the world.

I think the Royal Family should be allowed to have their say on the issues of the day. Prince Charles has made some very pertinent remarks on architecture and the environment while Prince Philip has also made some very blunt yet common sense statements on the same subjects.

Sean Porter,

ANTHONY ANDREWS AS KING!

I read with amusement your editorial on the Royal Family.

NOT THE WAY TO CARRY ON

I agree with your editorial on the conduct of the Royal Family.

I enclose a picture of Princess Diana which I believe does not really inspire the British people that the Royal Family are people to be looked up to.

BACK IN THE GUTTER PRESS

. . . . the Socialist Worker carried the headline on the marriage of Prince Charles to Princess Diana, 'Parasite marries Scrounger'.

Your editorial just about had the same to say. What a waste paper. The British people love their Royal Family and if you attack them you will just lose their support.

Immigration is the only topic the National Front should campaign on. Your repatriation policy has the support of the majority of British people. Don't lose that or confuse the issue by pontification on subjects that are none of your concern.

FUDGED

Reading The FLAG editorial for June I was suddenly filled with hope. At last the NF talking some sense on the Monarchy.

My euphoria was short lived. The Monarchy was to stay but we were to juggle around the order of who was to be top dog.

Talk about fudging the issue, talk about copping out. If you had followed your arguments through you would have arrived at the only conclusion. The Monarchy are a liability we could do without and they should be abolished.

White Racism: Beyond Natural Justice!

Racism is such a heinous crime that the laws of natural justice should not be applied to it.

Unlike murder, mugging and rape where the accused is innocent till proven guilty, white workers accused of racism should be presumed guilty until proven innocent.

This is the demand of London's Labour-run Camden Council in a report drawn up by a group of managers in its social-services department.

The racism is confined only to white workers, apparently blacks are unable to be racist. Those whites accused, if they cannot prove their innocence, would be sacked and blacklisted.

THE REAL REASON WHY GATTING GOT THE SACK

SO, MIKE Gatting has been tried, found guilty and sacked as England captain. His crime was to invite a barmaid up to his hotel room for a few drinks after Britain's ridiculous licensing laws forced the bar to close.

The Chairman of the England selectors, Peter May, said he fully accepted Mike Gatting's explanation and denial of any sexual impropriety. So then, why was Gatting sacked?

The newspapers have given Mike Gatting almost no space to answer his critics and the Test and County Cricket Board are now desperately trying to prevent cricket fans from reading his new book which they are banning from their cricket shops.

It has long been public knowledge that the forthright and straight-talking Mike Gatting was unpopular with the public school set of cricket administrators who were virtually forced to appoint him in succession to the drug-taking Botham and the terribly nice but rather useless Gower.

Some newspapers have tried to imply that the real reason Mike Gatting was sacked was the performance of the team. This is arrant nonsense as England had just, unbelievably, trounced the West Indies 3-0 in a series of one day games.

The real reason for this sacking is that Gatting's face doesn't fit. At every opportunity the TCCB backs down in the face of pressure from other cricketing countries, the last Pakistan tour being a prime example. But Gatting doesn't back down. His book shows that he hasn't forgotten the humiliation he and his team mates felt in Pakistan and how they felt betrayed by the TCCB.

The England selectors fear such a man of conviction because he is not putty in their hands. Gatting's indiscretion gave them the opportunity they had been waiting for to get rid of him.

But you cannot keep a good man down, and Gatting will not doubt be making his presence felt, if not for England, for Middlesex.

HOOLIGANISM

MARGARET THATCHER and her pet poodle Colin Moynihan are trying to strangle football in Britain. The way they gleefully heap the blame for hooliganism on the whole of football, is on a par with blaming the Spanish Tourist Authority for the holiday hooligans when they turn up in Ibiza or Majorca. How can it be fair to collectively punish all innocent clubs, supporters and teams by banning them from Europe?

Football is not the cause of hooliganism as is clearly shown by the recent switch of such troubles away from football to late night outbreaks of violence in small county towns.

SOUTH AFRICA

★ All top class water polo in England was banned after it had been revealed that a dozen English players had competed in South Africa recently.

★ Willie John McBride who toured five times with the British Lions Rugby team has called for a return to playing against South Africa.

★ Pakistan is to keep its opposition to South Africa being admitted to Test Cricket at the next International Cricket Conference in July. Presumably South Africa's extremely high standard of umpiring compared to their own has something to do with this.

MOTOR RACING

AS PREDICTED in last month's The FLAG, Jaguar Cars duly won the Le Mans 24-hour race for the first time since 1957 pushing Porsche out of the limelight.

This is good news, not only for motor racing fans but also for Jaguar Cars and their workforce as it will undoubtedly give a boost to the already healthy sales of Jaguar Cars.

The only danger is it is likely to increase the possibility of Jaguar being taken over by a foreign company.

HORSE RACING

EUROPEAN CUP SPECIAL

FALSE COLOURS

Ted Budden has some thoughts on events in Germany last month!

YOU CAN say what you like about the BBC - and in my time I've said plenty, none of it complimentary - but there is no denying the unerring skill with which it recruits staff for its fifth column. No one tainted with racial nationalism ever slips through the net. Those selected are all of a type - specifically, the type that you and I wouldn't touch with a sterilised barge pole.

One John Motson, for instance, is a football commentator employed by the BBC and, in the manner of that subversive organisation, is well-trained in the art of rhapsodising over the smallest skills of this or that football sootball. During the recent European Championship, one could sense the throb of thrilled anticipation in his voice whenever Holland's dreadlocked darkie Rud Gullit touched the ball, and wince at the gushing torrent of admiration for his "superb athleticism" whenever he broke into a trot. I feared, at one time, that if "the world's greatest footballer" actually scored a goal, yon Motson would be overwhelmed by a vocal orgasm yet, when it happened, I was forced to admire his iron self-control.

"One could sense the throb of thrilled anticipation in his voice whenever Holland's dreadlocked darkie touched the ball"

But, strangely enough, it seems that even this Motson person is not entirely devoid of racial or, more accurately, national awareness; for when the Russian team played he commented that since most of the side played for Dynamo Kiev and were Ukranians, they were not really Russians at all.

This seems to be nit-picking of the worst order, especially since the much-praised Eire team would accept as a qualification, anyone with an Irish great-grandmother or, if the need were great enough, anyone who eats potatoes.

Yet would Motson, even if so inclined, have ever dared to suggest that the assemblage of niggerish allsorts who play for Eire, England and Holland, were not actually English, Irish or Dutch - or, for that matter, even European?

If he did, a prosecution by the Race Relations Inquisition might follow and the ranks of the unemployed would certainly be immediately swelled by one.

Incidentally, for the first time in my life I was actually cheering the Russians on with hoarse cries of "Come on the Whites", on the grounds that pretty soon the Reds will be the only Whites left.

Naturally, with my luck, they lost.
